THE London News says: "The great civil war of the American Union has passed into the domain of history; and we may hope that the heart-burnings and bitterness attending the painful process of reunion and reconstruction are slowly but surely fading into oblivion."

How little the News knows America. How can they fade "into oblivion," when all over the South men are defending the same things that led to the war?

GOV. TALBOT, the man who beat Butler so badly last year for Governor of Massachusetts, has positively announced his determination to retire from politics. It is thought that ex-Mayor Price, of Boston, will be nominated by the Republicans. The "black-coated" Democracy has given Butler the go-by. At a meeting of their Executive Committee it was unanimously resolved that the Beacon street crowd would not join in convention with Butler's "ragged-shirt" followers.

When to Cut Sorghum.
From the Spirit of Kansas.
As good a time as any to cut sorghum is before it is entirely ripe. After you have it cut and the tops cut off—which should be cut off at about the upper joint; the juice above that does more damage than good—tie the cane in small bundles for convenience in handling; take it to your barn, or any place will do where it will not get wet, and cross-pile it to dry, and if the weather is not too warm, it can lie there several weeks before it will sour. The object in drying it is to get as much green juice out as possible. The green juice is in parts of the leaves left on after being stripped, and in the bark. If you press the cane as soon as cut, the juice will have an ugly green color. If you let it lie several weeks, the juice, when first pressed, will be almost white.

You Can Be Happy
If you will stop all your extravagant and wrong notions in doctoring yourself and families with expensive doctors or humbug cure-alls, that do harm always, and use only nature's simple remedies for all your ailments—you will be wise, well and happy, and save great expense. The greatest remedy for this, the great, wise and good will be, is Hop Bitters—believe it! See "Proverbs" in another column.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—It is now asserted positively asserted that the family and friends of the late A. T. Stewart have been apprised of an offer made by parties who claim to be able to produce the body of the deceased millionaire, and who have established the genuineness of their offer by sending silver plate and handles of the burial casket to this city. It is stated that the parties are in Montreal, and have opened negotiations through a lawyer in this city, enclosing $350 for his services. They offer to produce the remains for $250,000. The lawyer laid the matter before Police Superintendent Walling and deposited the plate and other articles forwarded to him at the police headquarters.

Judge Hilton, however, refuses it is said, to accede to the demands of the parties. It is alleged that the remains are in excellent state of preservation.

GUNNING FOR A SENATOR.

Ex-Governor Sprague Ejects Senator Conkling from His House.

Special to the Cincinnati Gazette.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, Aug. 11.—Ex-Governor Sprague has a mansion at the edge of this place, of large dimensions and much beauty of position, having a number of ocean and inland views of rare attractiveness. Owing to the financial difficulties of the Governor the house and grounds are to be sold in September. With a view to economizing, the Governor has sought in vain to have his wife curtail her expenditures. On Friday last he returned home from Providence to find his house in possession of Mrs. Sprague and seventeen guests, among whom was a German music teacher named Linck, and United States Senator Roscoe Conkling. He ordered them all to leave, in peremptory language, and after running away Linck, the Governor got his shot-gun and followed him to the village, declaring that he would kill the small game first, and return to the hunt of the larger game, Conkling. Not finding the German, he hunted Conkling until he came to him at Billington's restaurant, on the beach. From an eye witness to the scene that here ensued, your correspondent learns that this conversation substantially took place:

Sprague to Conkling.—D-n you, if you ever cross my path again I'll shoot you.

Conkling.—What have I done to you, Governor? I have always treated you well.

Sprague.—You are a d-d liar. You have insulted me. You have come to my house without an invitation.

Conkling.—No, I did not; you invited me. You will think better of this to-morrow. You are drunk.

Sprague.—You are a lying son of a b—

Conkling.—Don't you call me that again, or I will strike you with this umbrella.

Sprague.—Recollect what I tell you! I always keep my word. I will kill you if you ever cross my path again.

With this Sprague rode away, and in a few minutes Mrs. Sprague came in a carriage to the restaurant and talked some time with Senator Conkling, after which she went to a friend's house and remained, while her carriage was used to convey the Senator to the train. She has gone, no one seems to know just where. Her friends blame her exceedingly, saying that the Governor is devoted to her and his children, while she is cool and unfeeling to him.

The matter of the music teacher was simply one of whisky, economy and disregard of view, and disregarded wishes, not of jealousy.

Towards Conkling the Governor seems to have shown signs of jealousy heretofore. Washington was rife last winter with reports as to the intimacy of Mrs. Sprague and Conkling, and here, I am told by residents, the Governor had prohibited him his house on this account. Of the authority of this latter fact I am doubtful, but of the Washington scandal there is no doubt.

A gentleman here of high character, who has known Mrs. Sprague from her infancy, discredits all tales as to her infidelity, but says she has the will and impudence of a devil, and by its force and by her bad judgment she caused her father, the late Salmon P. Chase, to commit many of his most serious mistakes.

Conkling appealed personally and successfully to the New York Herald to suppress this scandal, but every paper in New England is loaded with it to-day, as are nearly all of those in New York.

The general verdict here is that Sprague was drunk, but somewhat justified by Mrs. Sprague's behavior, and that she and Conkling are old enough to do better.

Move Against Mormonism.

Special to the Cincinnati Gazette.

Washington, Aug. 10.—By direction of the President, Secretary Everts has sent a letter to our Ministers to Great Britain, Germany, and several lesser powers, protesting against their allowing subjects who are Mormons to leave for the United States. It sets forth that under the laws of this country bigamy is a crime, and that persons leaving foreign countries for the purpose of settling in Utah go there for the purpose of violating the laws of this country. Reference is made in the letter to the fact that under our treaties with these countries they are under obligations not to allow parties to depart from there jurisdiction who are known to have criminal intentions.

The President holds that after having given these nations notice that Mormons coming here as such render themselves liable to prosecution under our criminal laws, we will not be justified, in case these subjects are not prevented from leaving in refusing them admission to our ports.

Special to Cincinnati Commercial.

Washington, August 10.—The Administration has decided to commence an active warfare against the Mormons, and Secretary Everts' circular to foreign Governments, warning people against emigrating to this country to join the Mormons, but a preliminary step, considered necessary as a notice to the world that Mormonism is hereafter to be prosecuted as a crime in the United States. The Attorney General has been in consultation with the District Attorney of Utah, who will commence prosecutions under the Roland law this fall.

"Do you think the Republicans will renominate Grant for the Presidency?" asked a correspondent of The Philadelphia Press, in the course of a talk with General William T. Sherman at Atlantic City. The General replied promptly: "That depends entirely upon the course of the Democrats in Congress at the next session. If they show a disposition to rip the amendments from the Constitution, and repeal the laws that were enacted thereon; or in other words, if the Senator and members from the South attempt to reverse or qualify the verdict of the war, and make the vast mass of our industrious people feel alarmed. Grant is certain to be nominated, and the North solidified in his favor."

The man who wants his name kept out of the paper is just the man who professes not to believe in the virtue of advertising. Ask him for a local notice and he will tell you no one reads the paper—but just let him get found flirting with some other man's wife, walking off with funds that don't belong to him, or trying to hold up a lamp-post some dark night, and he'll climb seventeen feet of stairs and beg on his bended knee that the item should be suppressed. It makes a difference in the minds of a great many men whose ox is gored when an article is to appear in public print.—Elmira Gazette.
